IN TOULOUSE SEVERAL HUNDRED PROTESTERS DEMONSTRATED AS YELLOW VESTS MARK 1ST YEAR ANNIVERSARY-----

Several hundred "yellow vests" demonstrated Saturday in Toulouse and were dispersed many times with tear gas by the police, who arrested 17 people. In this stronghold of the movement for a year, the police fired tear gas and made use of the water cannon against the demonstrators only 20 minutes after the start of the parade. The "yellow vests" then turned around on a downtown boulevard. The police again fired tear gas, dispersing the parade into several small groups. The dispersions continued for more than two hours. In the late afternoon, only a few dozen protesters remained on the boulevards.

Three minor injuries were recorded by the State services, including 2 among the police. In the evening, two policemen, ended up trapped in a laundry as few protesters were throwing material from the Parisian construction, over the glass windows.

IN LYON TEAR GAS SHOOTING OVER THE DEMONSTRATION OF THOUSAND OF YELLOW VESTS-----

A thousand protesters, of the Yellow Vests movement, gathered Saturday afternoon in the heart of Lyon in an atmosphere that was quickly tense with tear gas. Despite the ban on demonstrations in the city center, several hundred people had gathered at Place Bellecour since 1 pm, most of them not wearing the iconic "yellow vest". In a rather confused atmosphere, some demonstrators were going to the edge of the square. And the situation was tense near the bridge leading to the district of Guillotière, resulting in tear gas in this busy area on Saturday. The police wanted to disperse demonstrators who were firing projectiles at them, says the Rhone prefecture.
