EDOUARD PHILIPPE PM FAILED TO CONVINC BY HIS PROPOSAL OF PENSION REFORM AT CESE

CFDT & UNSA POLICE UNION JOIN STRIKE

Paris, Washington DC, 12.12.2019, 02:37 Time

USPA NEWS - After several days of strikes and major demonstrations across France against the pension reform project, the Prime Minister's announcements were eagerly awaited. Indeed, Edouard Philippe who had warned yesterday at the National Assembly in answering the parliamentarians not to "expect magic proposals », failed today in convincing the union, to stop the Big strike, as they promise to continue their strike, and at least two big demonstrations planned on 12th and 17th December .

Today at noon, at the CESE, Economic and Social Council, the PM, Edouard Philippe, explained, for nearly an hour, the new format of the pension reform providing for a universal regime that would replace the current system included 42 special regimes in read the general scheme: "Universal, it wants the same for everyone. Without exception. In the universal pension system, elected officials and ministers will be treated exactly like all French people. » Introduced the PM.

The CGT Union, meanwhile continues the strike movement by calling to dismantle a large demonstration next December 12 and 17. The CGT explains and argues following the announcement of the PM, Edouard Philippe, determines on his side presented his bill on January 22, 2020, to the Council of Ministers before having it adopted by the National Assembly for "a fairer retirement and social and that there will be neither winner nor loser "" Born before 1975, do you think you are not concerned by the pension reform? This is not true: you will have to work longer. CGT responds with its slogan "All losers and the Youth sacrificed" with this retirement reform. The CGT Union goes further, published a press release unit following the announcements of the PM, Edouard Philippe titled "More than ever strengthen the mobilization".-----

REVERSE EFFECT IN UNIONS GETTING MORE AND MORE UNITED The announcement of measures for the Pension Reform Project failed to convince. It is therefore the opposite effect, because the government hoped that the unionists would fragment and dissociate each other, after the adjustments of last weekend. The opposite has occurred, and even the anger on the side of trade unionists has grown even bigger. The Unit Communique is signed by all of the following unions: CGT, CFECGC, FO, FSU, SOLIDAIRES, FIDL, MNL, UNEF, UNL.

French citizens, by cross polls, believe that: Despite the paralysis of France by the Greek transport, According to a Harris Interactive poll, more than two thirds of those who take public transport to go to the office are behind the strikers. That is 68% of support for the strike. Concerning the political opposition, namely the extreme Left of Jean Luc Mélenchon (LFI) and Extreme Gauche (RN) of Marine Le Pen, 80% of their respective voters are opposed to the reform and are opposed to the power in place more globally. Knowing that Marine Le Pen, asks President Macron to let "the people express themselves democratically by referendum"

EDOUARD PHILIPPE PM, ANNOUNCES THAT ONLY THOSE BORN AFTER 1975 WILL BE CONCERNED BY THE REFORM-----

"I present the Government's plan for the establishment of the universal pension system. I say this, with determination and respect for the trade unions, for the workers who adhere to them and for those who do not adhere to them: the time of the universal system has come, that of special regimes is coming to an end. "A explains Edward Philippe the PM, during his announcement of the pension reform bill, which provoked a standoff with the French unions, to the point of paralyzing France by a so-called "unlimited "strike having started since the 5th Last December. His intervention lasted almost an hour.

"The first principle is that of universality. The 1945 system was built according to a logic of statutes which took account of history and constraints specific to certain trades. It has evolved since. But it still works according to this logic. A logic that could be understood about sixty years ago, but which no longer corresponds to reality at all "recalled the PM, Edouard Philippe.-----

"The second principle is that of responsibility. Previous Governments have taken sometimes courageous and still unpopular measures to maintain the financial equilibrium of the system. These measures have each time solved part of the problem. Which is far from negligible. But they gave the feeling of healing without really healing.-----

Our system has not really adapted to demographic changes. There were 4 assets for 1 retiree in 1960. They were 2 active for 1 retiree in the year 2000. And we will count 1.5 assets for 1 retiree in 2040. The system, for the time being, is not far from balance. Should we deduce that nothing should be done? I do not believe that. Because the retirements will remain very numerous in the years to come and everything suggests that this deficit will strongly deteriorate. "Continues Edouard Philippe "The third principle, which is a challenge for all of us, is that of trust. Confidence between generations:

- More and more young people think that they will never benefit from a real retirement. However, the less confidence they have in the system, the less they will agree to contribute. This is not the case today. But there is no indication that it will always be the same tomorrow. Let us remember that the yellow vests crisis was also a tax consent crisis. "Said the PM, Edouard Philippe."We will ensure that the level of retirement pensions for teachers is guaranteed by progressively upgrading their general salaries. "Edouard Philippe PM announced yesterday to Parliamentarians during the session of question to the government in the National Assembly.

MINISTERS WHO FAILED IN CONVINCING ON TV SHOWS ON THE PENSION REFORM FACING EXPERIENCED UNIONISTS-----

Today, the proposals presented today which propose the establishment of a universal points system - the value of which will be fixed by the social partners, making forecast on the amount of future pension impossible. The reform also provides for the abolition of 42 so-called "special" regimes and the establishment of a pivotal age at 64 and a bonus-malus system from 2027. Only those born after 1975 will be affected by this reform. There is also a minimum retirement pension of € 1000 floor. AND as for police, gendarmes and pumps, they will be entitled to derogations. The Ministers of National Education, Jean Michel Blanquer, have trouble convincing on the TV channel, BFM TV, with the journalist Ruth Elkrief and Bruce Toussaint, who have their title debate "Greve Stop or Encore" Secretary D 'State with legality Men-Women Marlene Schiappa as for it far from convincing on another chain Tv, LCI, where the debate is also around the consequences of the announcement of the PM on the reform of the retirement.

of Transport Jean Baptiste Djebbari, who was knocked out to him by a young railwayman Anasse, on the set TV show of "Balance ton Post", on TV C8, animated by Cyril Hanouna one of the perverse animators of the French ... and the most popular . The railwayman Anasse, perfectly mastering the subject of the retreat and brandishing the report of 132 pages of Jean Paul Delevoye, High Commissioner for the Reform of the Retreat, accuses the Secretary of State for Transport Jean Baptiste Djebbari of "lying and books of fake news ", without forgetting to report that Mr. Delevoye receives 4 accumulated retirements of Ex-MP, Ex-senator, Ex Minister and Ex Private salary, in addition to his current salary of more than 10,135 € monthly since the 18 months that he was appointed to the government. The public applauds and comforts the union member in his plea ... At his side, a young woman, (Anonymus) police, a firefighter and another union member from SNCF ... determined to continue the strike even for a necessary mold, namely "As long as this pension reform is not withdrawn by the government "

JP DELEVOYE FORCED TO RESIGN FROM IFPASS FOLLOWING REVELATION OF INTEREST CONFLICT WITH INSURANCE-----

Jean Paul Delevoye had to resign yesterday from the presidency of a think tank (Ipass, the training institute of the insurance profession), where he was paid 5,300 euros per month, Jean-Paul Delevoye. This case was revealed two days ago by the Journal Le Parisien. He announced to CheckNews that he will refund all monies collected. This combination of a professional activity and a position in government was contrary to the Constitution. Indeed, Jean Paul is the High Commissioner for Pensions, and has resigned in recent days from several positions he held in the private sector, for obvious reasons of conflict of interest.

CFDT "HERE" IN RETREAT OF THE GOVERNMENT'S FLEXIBLE EXPANSION STRIKE CALLED FOR THE STRIKE TOO The CFDT, the largest union in France, had stood aside and had not participated in the General strike that began last December 5 (So far the unions, CGT, FO, FSU, SUD RAIL, had launches the strike).
