THIS MOMENT CAN BE AN OPPORTUNITY TO RESPOND IMMENSE CHALLENGES PDT MACRON STATED

French President Macron first received in the presence of his wife Brigitte Macron, in Paris in a protocol order the heads of state and government and heads of financial and institutional institutions, ministers and ambassadors, for a French lunch at the Palais de l'Elysee. The guests then went to the Grand Palais Ephemere, to attend the conference chaired by President Macron.-----

"This moment can be an opportunity to be seized to finally respond to immense challenges that we basically did not want to fully meet in previous years," said President Emmanuel Macron during the final press conference that followed the plenary session. .

President Macron stated " The objective of this summit was twofold: to provide short-term responses and to launch a dynamic which could truly create this economic and strategic New Deal with the African continent. I believe that on these two aspects we have succeeded in making progress. Of course, we do not change in one day and in a summit the life of the African continent or the relations between Africa and the rest of the world, but I believe that our discussions have shown a collective awareness, a change of mindset and the launch of a deep dynamic. " President Macron, insisted also on the matter of « urgent' and « ambition » for the African Continent. "We will see to what extent we can raise funds to save Africa," said Felix Tshisekedi, President of Democratic Republic of Congo, (Presidence of OUA), adding that the pandemic "left our economies drained because we have had to spend all the little resources we had to fight the disease". According to the International Monetary Fund (IMF), up to $ 285 billion in additional financing over the period 2021-2025 would be needed by African countries to strengthen their response to the pandemic. President Macron also set out a target of vaccinating 40% of people in Africa by the end of 2021, by rising up from 20% - to 40% of African vaccination, besides, the collective decision from the Participants who agreed « The African continent should be able to massively produce vaccines for its own population via technology transfers and waiving the vaccines' intellectual property »

PRESIDENT MACRON UNVEILS $ 100 Bn of SDR RELEASED BY IMF FOR AFRICA-----

President Macron announced that the $ 34 billion originally planned by the IMF for Africa "It is too little and still insufficient". Hence the declared will to achieve, in the coming months, a target of $100 billion SDRs for Africa. "It is a very important moment, we gather here to reverse a process of a very dangerous divergence between advanced economies and developing countries, especially Africa," said IMF chief Kristalina Georgieva in opening comments.-----

PRESIDENT MACRON IS IN FAVOR OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF NEW FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS IN AFRICA

To meet the immense financial challenge, to reduce the African debt, but also to facilitate co-production, the tool which was at the heart of the debates during the summons, was the "Special Drawing Rights (SDR)" of the IMF, which allow to provide currencies (the 5 currencies which are the Dollar, Pound Sterling, to the countries which need it without creating additional debt.

The SDR is an international reserve asset, created by the IMF in 1969 to supplement its member countries 'official reserves. So far SDR 204.2 billion (equivalent to about US $ 293 billion) have been allocated to members, including SDR 182.6 billion allocated in 2009 in the wake of the global financial crisis. The value of the SDR is based on a basket of five currencies — the U.S. dollar, the euro, the Chinese renminbi, the Japanese yen, and the British pound sterling. (IMF Source)

IMF PLANNED 650 $ Bn OF SDR INCLUDING 33 $ Bn FOR AFRICA BEFORE THE AFRICAN NEW DEAL SUMMIT

The principle of a global issue of 650 billion dollars of SDR by the IMF - recorded before this summit, in particular thanks to the approval of the United States, last March - has been confirmed. Yet, of these 650 billion, only 33 billion are intended for African countries - which could be made available to them as of September 2021. The President of Senegal, Macky Sall estimated that this is such a small amount, and a "drop of water in the ocean" because the SDRs are distributed according to the quotas of each country within the IMF. Their largest share therefore goes to the richest countries.-----

President Macron said the summit agreed to work towards getting rich nations to reallocate $100 billion (€81 billion) in International Monetary Fund's (IMF) special drawing rights monetary reserves to African states by October. IMF Managing Director Kristalina Georgieva had confirmed the organization will issue $33 billion for the African continent this year in special drawing rights, a foreign exchange tool used to help finance imports. The summit aims to triple that amount.

"We cannot afford leaving the African economies behind," said President Macron in the summit's final declaration.

President Macron adds that "France is ready for it, Portugal too," said the French president. We must now convince others to make the same effort, especially the United States » Explained the French Head of State , without communicating a precise amount or a timetable for these reallocations of SDRs (SPECIAL DRAWING RIGHTS). We will have to wait at least for the next European Council of 24-25 May, in Brussels, where President Macron will announce it himself, or one of the other leaders of the European Commission, Ursula Von Der Lyen or Charles Michel President of the European Council,President Macron also ended by saying 'wait for the response from the USA, and therefore the American Congress'.../
