WITH OPTIMAL CONDITIONS

Paris, Washington DC, 03.09.2015, 04:09 Time

USPA NEWS - Kick-off of the harvest to the Rhone Valley, which benefited from optimal conditions start earlier than last year. Ripening is well advanced and ran quickly with good uniformity on the Grenache and Syrah. This vintage 2015 promises to be particularly concentrated and should be exceptional red wines.

KICK OFF OF THE RED WINE HARVEST IN THE RHONE VALLEY ON SEPTEMBER 7 EARLIER THAN 2014-----

After a rainy winter, a spring well watered until June and a Mediterranean summer, in short ideal conditions, the vineyards of the Rhone Valley is preparing to slightly early harvest than usual. The kickoff of the harvest will be given this Thursday, August 27, 2015 in the early sectors of the vineyards of the Rhône Valley while the real start for red wines should be around September 7, a week earlier than in 2014 .

In the northern part, the first harvests are also expected to begin by the end of August for the white areas of early and early September for red, an advance of about two weeks compared to 2014. We already observed nice phenolic maturity which give hope solar, concentrated wines.... For a vineyard that has benefited from optimal conditions

The vineyards of the Rhone Valley approached the summer with significant water reserves. With rains of June, the vine has supported the high summer temperatures and lack of rain. The flowering took place in good conditions. The few rains in August favored maturation in the most droughty soils.

EARLY MATURITY SHOW HIGH LEVELS OF PHENOLICS AND ANTHOCYANINS MEANS AN EXCELLENT VINTAGE WINE-----

To date, the physiological state of the vineyards of the Rhône Valley illustrates perfectly the Rhône varieties adapt to the climatic conditions of the region: hot, dry and windy. The Rhône Valley vineyards with deep roots are very adapted to the Mediterranean climate and climate advantaged in such a situation. Early maturity samples show high levels of phenolics and anthocyanins on all sectors. The cool nights of recent days contribute to the phenolic maturation.
