USPA NEWS - The new book by Antoine Glaser, former director of "La Lettre du Continent", has just been published by Editions Fayard. He presents the pitch of his book inspired by French colonialism in Africa, entitled "Arrogant as French in Africa" about the "Love and Hate" between France and Africa.

"France wakes up in Africa with a hangover She thought everything was still under control and that his" African science "was infallible All this is an illusion.. The policies, religious, social and economic of this continent have completely escaped him.

Moreover, in France itself, not do we love that African French like us?-----

The French Catholic congregations are strongly competition from Wake Churches (Evangelical, Pentecostal, charismatic ...), not to mention the expansion of radical Islamism. Ignorance of Africa and Africans led France to anachronistic analyzes and underestimate the wealth of this continent and its diaspora. It is this contempt Antoine Glaser is working to denounce in his new book "Arrogant as French in Africa." It is time to stop lecturing and learn from Africa! Antoine Claser This book is also available in digital version.
